

Raven Sinclair is Nehiyaw-Cree from George Gordon First Nation in Saskatchewan. She is a Professor of Social Work and Researcher with the University of Regina, Saskatoon Campus. Raven is a survivor of the Indigenous child welfare system. Her areas of interest include Indigenous mental health and trauma recovery, Indigenous child welfare, transracial adoption and cultural identity, interpersonal and non-violent communication, and group process and facilitation. Raven is a member of the Canadian Institutes of Health Research College of Reviewers, the Waakebiness-Bryce Institute of Indigenous Health Research, the Yellowhead Research Institute, and a federal court appointed advisor to the Sixties Scoop Healing Foundation. Raven is the mother of a beautiful 13 year-old daughter.